2002 GOLDEN KNIGHTS CHAMPIONSHIP ENDS

Chuck Cullum has won the 2002 Golden Knights. Chuck was born on 17 July 1944 and raised a proud Dorchester boy. Married for the last eight years to a beautiful southern belle, father to three grown children and five grandkids, Chuck has enough businesses and hobbies to keep him very busy – with just enough time for CC play. Chuck states that his approach to CC seems to echo that of Burton, Duliba, O’Connell and others – take your time! Study! Use the books and databases, set up the position on the board and move the pieces around! And above all, leave it alone if you are preoccupied with other matters!

Chuck avoids OTB tournament play as it reminds him too much of what his normal life is like: hectic, fast-paced, constantly dealing with distractions and sometimes annoying people.

GAME OF THE MONTH

The technique of good correspondence chess lies in playing good moves –
Graham Mitchell

MODERN DEFENSE (E90)

White: Chuck Cullum (2416)

Black: Preston Polasek (2237)

2002 Golden Knights Final

1.d4 c6 2.c4 d6 3.Nc3 Nf6 4.Nf3 Nbd7
5.e4 e5 6.Be2 g6 7.0–0 Bg7 8.d5

8.Re1 0–0 9.Bf1 a5 10.dxe5 Vostrotin-
Koehs, ICCF email 2003 drawn shortly]

8...Nc5 9.Qc2 a5 10.Be3

10...Qc7?

A natural move, but a careless one. White now wins a Pawn after which it is a “matter of technique”. Black can afford to castle, after which if White tries to win the e-Pawn, Black will play ...Re8 regaining the button.

11.Nxe5! Nfxe4 12.Nxe4 Nxe4 13.Nxc6
Nc5 14.Nd4 0–0

White has pocketed a free Pawn and has a winning edge. Now White sets his sight for the d6 Pawn.

15.Nb5 Qb6 16.Bf4 Bf5 17.Qd2 Ne4
18.Qe3!

With the Queens off the board it only gets easier for White.

18...Qxe3 19.fxe3 Bxb2 20.Rab1 Be5
21.Bd3!

Now Black has to face the threat of g4 as well as 22. Bxe4 Bxe4 23. Nxd6. Faced with these threats, Black does best to take the offered exchange.

21...Nd2 22.Bxf5 Nxf1 23.Kxf1

Also good for White was 23. Bd3 Bxf4 24. exf4 Ne3 25. Nxd6 but this is simpler.

23...Bxf4 24.exf4 gxf5 25.Nxd6

Two passed Pawns in the center, two unguarded Pawns under attack, an active Rook and a handsome Knight -- what more would White want for the exchange ?

25...Rfd8 26.c5 Ra6 27.Nxf5 Rf6
28.Ne7+ Kf8 29.Rxb7 Rxf4+ 30.Kg1
1-0

The simplest win is 30...Re8 31. d6 Rd4 32. h3! a4 33. Nf5 and the Pawns will advance.

US TENTH in 15 OLYMPIAD

The US team consisting of Daniel Fleetwood, Jason Bokar, Tim Murray, Joseph DeMauro, Gary Kubach, and Stephen Jones finished in eleventh place in the 15 Olympiad Final. The US was led by three Grandmasters and three Senior IMs against a tough field. Norway, led by World Champion Ivar Bern, finished first, Germany, led by Hans-Marcus Elwert, runner-up in the 18th World Championship, second, and the Netherlands, by former World Champion Joop van Oosterom, third. Special mention should be made of GM Daniel Fleetwood who finished with an even score at top board. The bright spot for the US, however, was the performance by GM Jason Bokar, scoring 8-5. Among his opponents Jason had to face XV World Champion Gert Timmerman with whom he tied for second but took the bronze on tie breaks.

15 Olympiad Final Standings

1. Norway	48-30
2. Germany	47-31
3. Netherlands	46 ½-31 ½
4. Portugal	43 ½-34 ½
5. Russia	42 ½-35 ½
6. Slovenia	41 ½-36 ½
7. Estonia	39 ½-38 ½
8. Austria	38-40
9. Lithuania	37-41

10. Ireland	36-42
11. United States	34 ½-43 ½
12. Latvia	34-44
13. Kazakstan	30-48
14. Poland	28-50

Defense is the hardest. Here Bokar defends and defends until his Polish opponent finally collapses from exhaustion.

CALL FOR MINIATURE GAMES !

December will be the month for our usual miniature games presentation. If you have won (or lost) (or drawn!) an interesting, amusing, instructive, agonizing, surprising, original or slashing correspondence game of 20 moves or under, please send it to me for possible publication in the December issue.

If you like chess jokes, you can find more at www.chess.com

Two chess players are playing a correspondence game. White lives at the South Pole, and Black lives at the North Pole. The postal service is rather slow and play proceeds at the rate of one move per year. After 22 years of play, white makes a daring queen sacrifice, the consequences of which are by no means clear. A year later, as he sees the postman returning, he is very excited. He thinks "Will Black take my Queen ?" "Is the sacrifice sound ?"

He tears open the reply and sees, "Jadoube".

50-MOVE RULE IN ICCF PLAY

As computer strength increased, certain positions (such as R+B vs. R and Q vs. 2 B's endgames, among others) were found to have solutions that would exceed the 50-move rule. These positions are recorded now in Nalimov Endgame Databases and are available for free online. OTB play continues to uphold the 50-move rule. An argument has been proposed in ICCF play (to be decided upon in the 2010 ICCF Congress in Turkey by the Rules Commission). The argument is made that CC being more scientific and practical, the OTB oriented 50-move rule contradicts the basic correspondence chess approach, supposing an artificial restriction to the mathematical solution of a problem. What do the USCF readers think ?

R. Scott Ireland, second place finisher in the 2002 Golden Knights is a photographer and a member of the International Association of Volcanology and Chemistry of the Earth's Interior. His website has some outstanding astronomy and volcano photos..

His chess may not be quite as fiery, but in the following game he makes it plenty hot for A. J. Zeppa.
